Mayor Carr then opened the floor to the public to speak for or against the matter.

Adam Bartholomew- as the owner of the property, Bartholomew spoke in favor of the conditional use permit request and said those who spoke against it at the Planning and Zoning meeting were ill informed. He stated that short-term rentals were gaining popularity due to the lack of lodging choices in the area and provided additional justification as to why he thought the City Council should overturn the decision of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Pat Brown- stated he lived next door to 337 LaSalle and had experienced people walking across his yard and slamming car doors late in the evening. He stated his opposition to the short-term rental saying he considered it a safety threat to the neighborhood.

Jackie Haffer- said she was very vested in the neighborhood and chose the area to live in following her retirement. She also mentioned there was only one way in and one way out of the neighborhood and was concerned about increased traffic and the safety of those living there.
